At the info day itself, we presented to experts from different fields what has been developed in the year since the project started, how it has evolved investment. They could also see the progress of the project via a promotional video.

Welcomed the project and agreed that it was urgently needed for the transition to the green and sustainable.

In order to meet the climate challenge, Slovenia must economy into an economic and competitive one that will protect today's society and future generations from pressures on raw materials. One of the objectives is to achieve climate neutrality by 2050, to boost the economy with green technology, to create sustainable industry and reduce pollution.

In practice, this means that more material efficiency in the handling of raw materials, the realisation of projects efficient material and energy recovery of waste, and faster progress in adapting to climate change

»Working together for a green, competitive and inclusive Europe«

V praksi to pomeni, da je potrebna večja snovna učinkovitost pri ravnanju s surovinami, realizacija projektov učinkovite materialne in energetske izrabe odpadkov ter hitrejši napredek pri prilagajanju na podnebne spremembe
